EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this report is to present an overview of Bexar County and San Antonio area demographic changes between 2000 and 2010 using U.S. Census Bureau decennial census Summary File 1 (SF 1) data. Selected race/ethnicity; age; household; and housing unit data are presented in tables and charts and text highlights. The data are provided for a total of twelve geographic areas of analysis including: Bexar County; the City of San Antonio; and the ten City of San Antonio Council Districts.

SUMMARY

National: San Antonio's population grew by approximately 15.9% from 1,144,646 to 1,326,539 (see methodology section). The 15.9% increase moved San Antonio from the 9th largest city in the U.S. in 2000 to the 7th largest by 2010. San Antonio was the fastest growing city among the top ten largest cities in the nation, adding more people to its total population and having the greatest percent change between 2000 and 2010.

Texas: San Antonio is now the second largest city in Texas, behind Houston (population 2,099,451) and ahead of Dallas (population 1,197,816), Austin (population 790,390), and Ft. Worth (population 741,206). Of the ten largest cities in Texas, San Antonio's population growth rate ranked fifth behind Ft. Worth (+38.6%), Laredo (+33.7%), Austin (+20.4%), and Plano (+17%).

County: Bexar County grew from a population of 1,392,931 to 1,714,773 (+23.1%). The county grew at a significantly higher rate than the City of San Antonio over the last ten years. Bexar County's Hispanic or Latino, Not Hispanic or Latino Black or African American Alone (hereafter referred to as Black or African American) and Not Hispanic or Latin Asian Alone (hereafter referred to as Asian) populations grew at significantly higher rates than (+33%, +23.4% and +85.1%, respectively) than the City of San Antonio's over the last ten years. In contrast to the City of San Antonio's declining Not Hispanic or Latino White Alone (hereafter referred to as White) population, Bexar County's White population grew (+4.6%).

City: As mentioned above, San Antonio grew from a population of 1,144,646 to 1,326,539 (+15.9%), adding 181,893 people to the total population. The Hispanic or Latino (of any race) population accounted for 91.9% of this increase.

Race/Ethnicity: The Hispanic or Latino population grew from 671,394 to 838,454 (+24.9%). The White population decreased from 364,357 to 352,858 (-3.2%). This was the only population group that decreased. The Black or African American population grew from 74,778 people to 83,302 people (+11.4%). The Asian population was the fastest growing group, increasing from 17,084 to 30,562 (+78.9%). Hispanics or Latinos continue to represent the largest proportion of the total population at 63.2%, followed by Whites (26.6%), Blacks or African Americans (6.3%), Asians (2.3%) and all others (1.6%).

Gender: While the growth rate of the male population in San Antonio was slightly higher than females (+17% and +14.9% respectively) females remain a slight majority of the total population.

Age: The median age of San Antonio has increased over the last ten years from 32.9 to 34.3. Council District 4 continues to have the lowest median age of all Districts, at 30.8 and Council District 9 continues to have the highest median age at 37.8.

Households Size and Type: Households are getting smaller in San Antonio. Between 2000 and 2010, the average household size of households up to seven persons or more decreased from 2.74 to 2.69. Non-family households grew at a much faster rate than traditional family households, (+29.4% and +13.2%) respectively.

Housing: Bexar County added housing units at a faster rate than the city over the last ten years, (+27.1% and +20.9%). The city growth rate for renter occupied (+22.6) and vacant (+61.2%) housing units both outpaced the growth rate of owner occupied (+15%) housing units.

CHANGES IN THE DECENNIAL CENSUS AND DATA GATHERED

Prior to the 2010 Decennial Census, one out of every six households received a much longer census form than all other households with socio-economic demographic questions to complete. In addition to topics included on the short form, the long form questions covered topics such as: Income, Employment; Education; Travel Times to Work; Housing Costs and Poverty. Due to the unpopularity of the long-form census it was discontinued in the 2010 Decennial Census and thus substantially less information is now being produced from that data source. The topics that continue to be addressed in the Decennial Census include: Population; Sex; Age; Race; Ethnicity; Household / Family; Housing Units; and Group Quarters.

The Decennial Census long form was replaced by the American Community Survey (ACS). The ACS is an on-going survey with approximately 1 out of 55 households returning a survey each month. Due to the much smaller sample size, data is released depending on the size of population in the survey area. For some areas, such as states and larger counties (with populations greater than 65,000), data is available annually. For other areas (at least 20,000 in population size), three years of data are required for a data release. For areas smaller than 20,000 in population size, such as small counties and census tracts, five years of survey returns are required to generate a statistically valid survey response.

An alternative data source to the ACS can be obtained from a private data provider such as Nielsen Claritas. The benefit of these data is that they are produced annually at small resolutions such as census block groups, which are smaller geographies than tracts and much better suited to aggregating by areas such as Council Districts. In addition, this data provider uses multiple private and public (including the Decennial Census and ACS) data sources, with most obtained on at least an annual basis, to create and update its demographic database.

ADDENDUM

The Addendum provides greater detail regarding: SF 1 datasets; data resolution; source tables for the data included in this report; clarifications of Race / Ethnicity and Types of Households / Same Sex Couple issues; the City of San Antonio versus Census Bureau's population calculations; the procedure used to assign block to particular Council Districts, and further details regarding the update to the Population Distribution and Change report released in May 2010.

POPULATION COMPARISONS

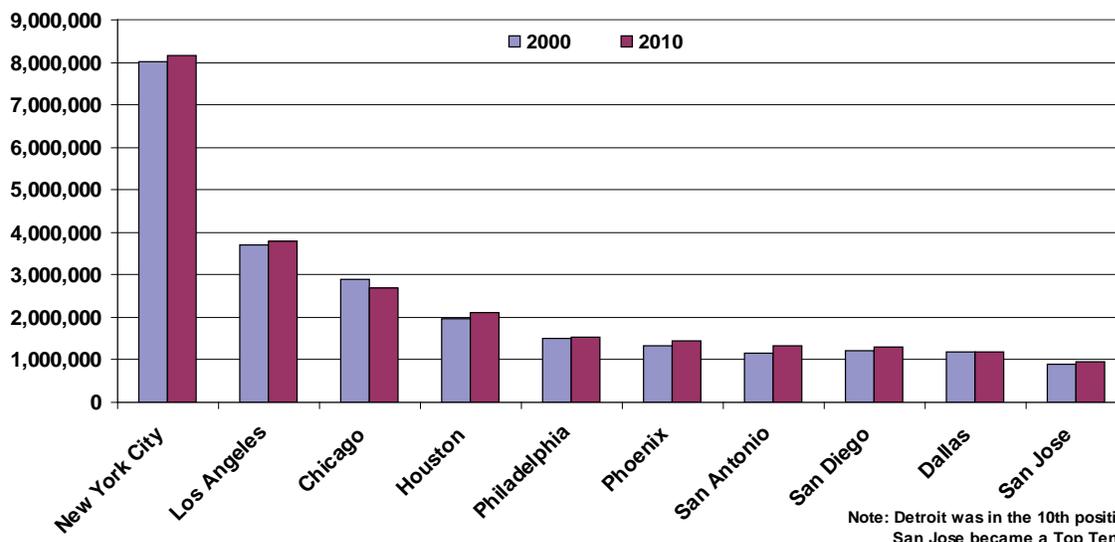

Population Comparison with Major Cities in the U.S.

In 2000, San Antonio was the ninth most populated city in the United States. By 2010 San Antonio moved to the seventh most populated city with 1,326,539 people. Nine of the top ten most populated cities in 2000 remained within the top ten in 2010. Detroit was ranked 10th in 2000 but fell to 18th in 2010. San Jose replaced Detroit as the 10th largest city for 2010, moving up from the 11th largest in 2000.

From 2000 to 2010, San Antonio had the highest percent of population increase (+15.9%) of the ten largest cities with a gain of 181,893 people. In addition to San Antonio, New York City (+166,855), Houston (+145,820), and Phoenix (+124,587) gained the most population between 2000 and 2010. However, the percent change of those cities was less than San Antonio (+2.1%, +7.5%, and +9.4% respectively). Of the ten cities, Chicago was the only city to lose population (-6.9%), losing more people (-200,418) than was gained by any other individual top ten city.

2010 Top Ten Largest Population Cities in the United States

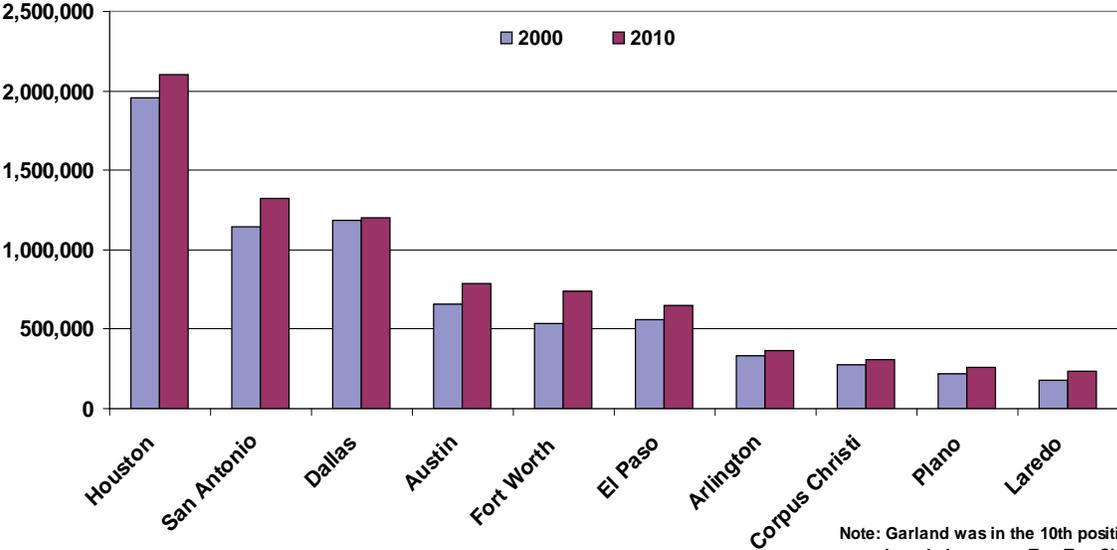

Population Comparison with Major Cities in Texas

In 2000, San Antonio was the third most populated city (1,144,646) in Texas after Houston (1,953,631) and Dallas (1,188,580). By 2010, the population of San Antonio (1,326,539) had surpassed that of Dallas (1,197,816) making San Antonio the second most populated city in the state after Houston (2,099,451).

The only other top ten city to add more population than San Antonio was Fort Worth. Fort Worth added 206,512 people, growing from 534,694 to 741,206. Fort Worth had a higher growth rate (+38.6%) than any other top ten city. The other top ten cities with a greater percent change in population from 2000 to 2010 than San Antonio (+15.9%) were Laredo (+33.7%), Austin (+20.4%), and Plano (+17%). Despite remaining the top ranked city, Houston had the second lowest growth rate (+7.5%) after Dallas (+0.8%).

The Black or African American population now represents 4.9% of the area's total population, a decrease from 5.3% in 2000. The Asian population increased by 120.8%, growing from 264 to 583. The Asian population now represents 0.6% of the area's total population, an increase from 0.4% in 2000.

Inside 410: Geographic Area G

The geographic area located in central Bexar County situated inside Loop 410 and excluding the Central Business District (CBD) had a lower growth rate (+0.6%) than any other geographic area between 2000 and 2010. The Inside 410 area added 4,048 people, growing from 658,452 to 662,500. This area's percent of the County's total population decreased from 47.3% to 38.6%.

The Hispanic or Latino population increased by 6.4%, growing from 481,773 to 512,479. The Hispanic or Latino population now represents 77.4% of the area's total population, an increase from 73.2% in 2000. The White, Black or African American, and Asian populations all decreased as a percent of total population between 2000 and 2010 (-16.5%, -14.2%, and -4.5% respectively).

Central Business District: Geographic Area H

The Central Business District (CBD) boundaries used in this analysis are those defined by the San Antonio, Texas, Code of Ordinances (Part II, Chapter 4, Article I, Sec 4-4). The CBD had the second lowest growth rate (+7.8%) of the geographic areas between 2000 and 2010. The CBD added 724 people, growing from 9,424 to 10,148. This area's percent of the County's total population decreased from 0.7% in 2000 to 0.6% in 2010.

The Hispanic or Latino population declined by 1.3%, decreasing from 5,980 to 5,902. The Hispanic or Latino population now represents 57.3% of the area's total population, a decrease from 62.5% in 2000. The White and Black or African American populations increased in total population between 2000 and 2010, growing at a rate of 21.3% and 21.6% respectively. The Asian population increased by 110.3%, growing from 58 to 122. The Asian population now represents 1.2% of the area's total population, an increase from 0.6% in 2000.

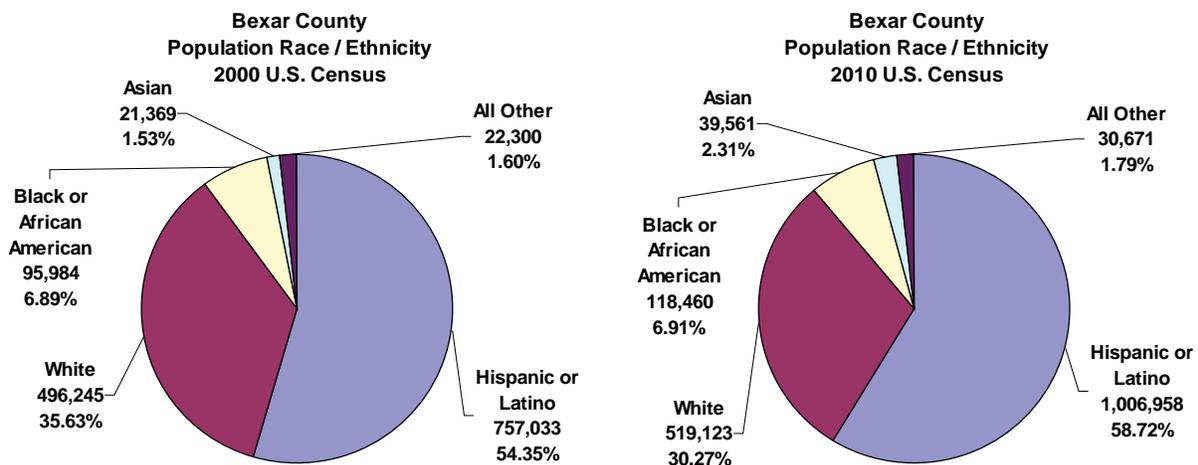

BEXAR COUNTY DEMOGRAPHIC CHANGES

HIGHLIGHTS:

- Bexar County experienced a higher total population growth rate (+23.1%) than the City of San Antonio (+15.9%) in its population increase from 1,392,931 in 2000 to 1,714,773 in 2010.
- Bexar County experienced growth in the: Hispanic or Latino (+33%); White (+4.6%); Black or African American (+23.4%) and Asian (+85.1%) populations, with the Hispanic or Latino population having the highest numeric growth (+249,925).
- Bexar County experienced male population numeric (+163,299) and percent (+24.1%) increases and female population numeric (+158,543) and percent (+22.2%) increases. Despite the greater increase in the male population, the male / female ratio (0.95) shows that females are still (slightly) in the majority.
- In 2000, the age distribution for Bexar County had somewhat equal numbers or percentages for almost all age groups and between genders as well as the expected decreasing proportions for the oldest age groups beginning around the 50 to 54 age group. In 2010, while the basic pattern of the age distribution is the same, the beginning of the decreasing proportions for the older age groups has shifted to around the 55 to 59 age group.
- Bexar County experienced increases in the: total population median age from 2000 (33.3) to 2010 (34.6); male population median age from 2000 (31.8) to 2010 (33.1); and the female population median age from 2000 (34.6) to 2010 (35.8).

Population Race / Ethnicity

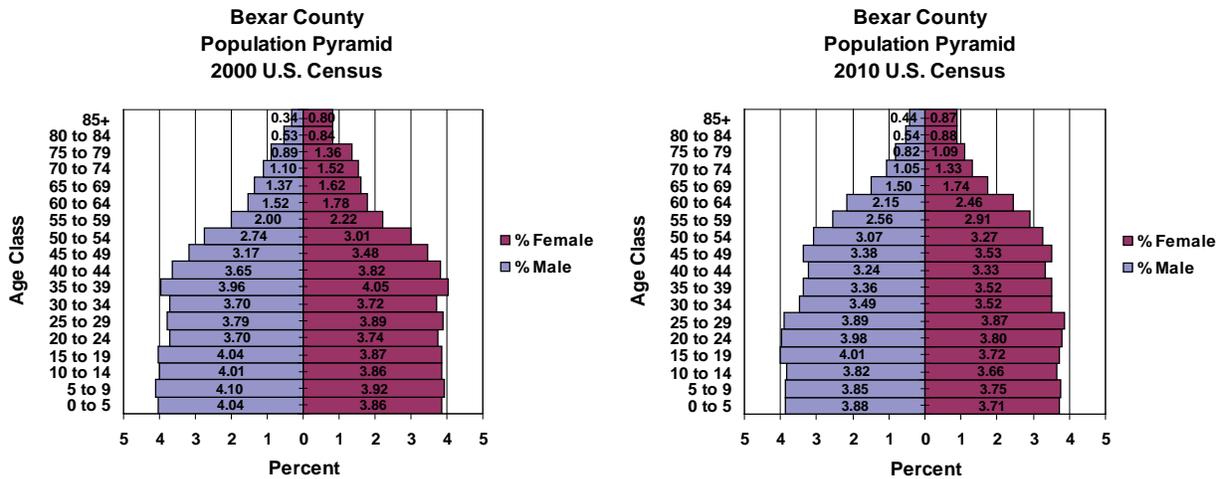

The total population increased by 23.1% from 1,392,931 to 1,714,773. The Hispanic or Latino population increased by 33.0% from 757,033 to 1,006,958. White population increased by 4.6% from 496,245 to 519,123. Black or African American population increased by 23.4% from 95,984 to 118,460. Asian population increased by 85.1% from 21,369 to 39,561.

Bexar County Demographic Changes

Gender Groups

Bexar County's male population increased by 24.1% from 677,541 to 840,840. Female population increased by 22.2% from 715,390 to 873,933.

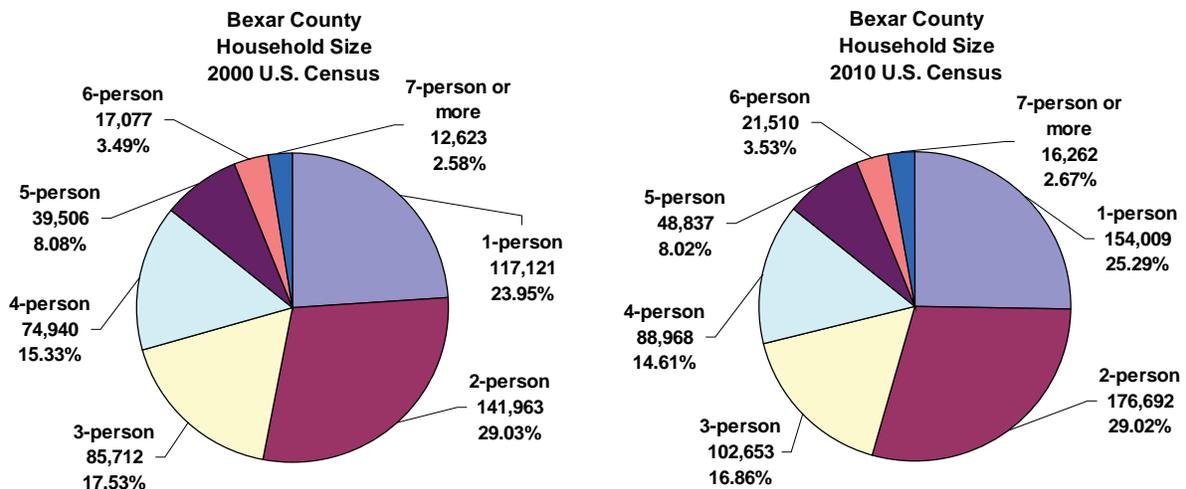

Median Age

The total population median age increased by 3.6% from 33.5 to 34.7. Median age of the male population increased by 3.8% from 32 to 33.2. Median age of the female population increased by 3.3% from 34.8 to 36.

Household Type by Household Size

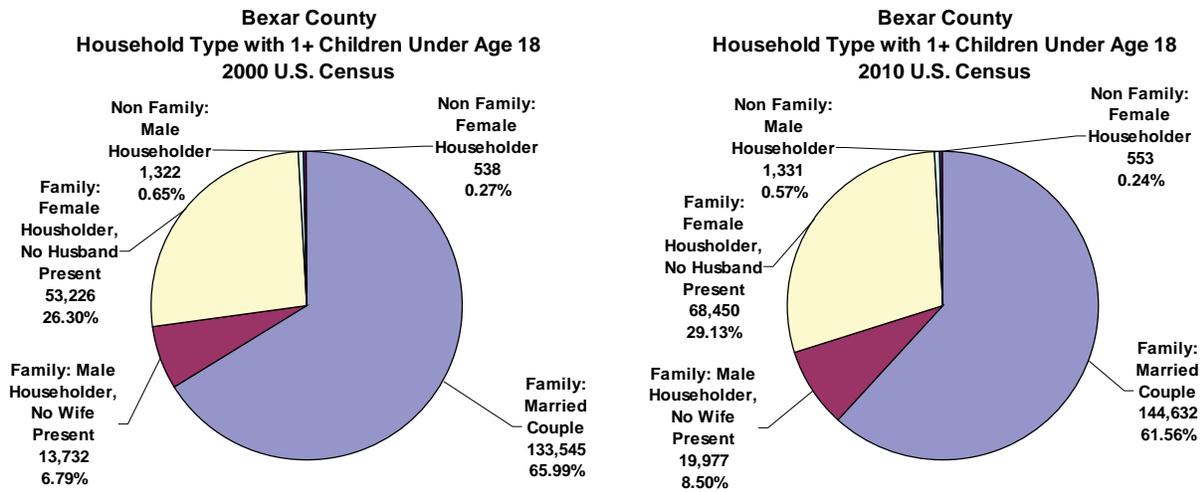

Bexar County's total households increased by 24.5% from 488,942 to 608,931. Family households increased by 20.4% from 345,717 to 416,356. Non family households increased by 34.5% from 143,225 to 192,575. (Non family households either consist of people living alone or households which do not have any members related to the householder.) The average size of households up to 7 persons declined (-1.1%) from 2.75 to 2.72.

Bexar County Demographic Changes

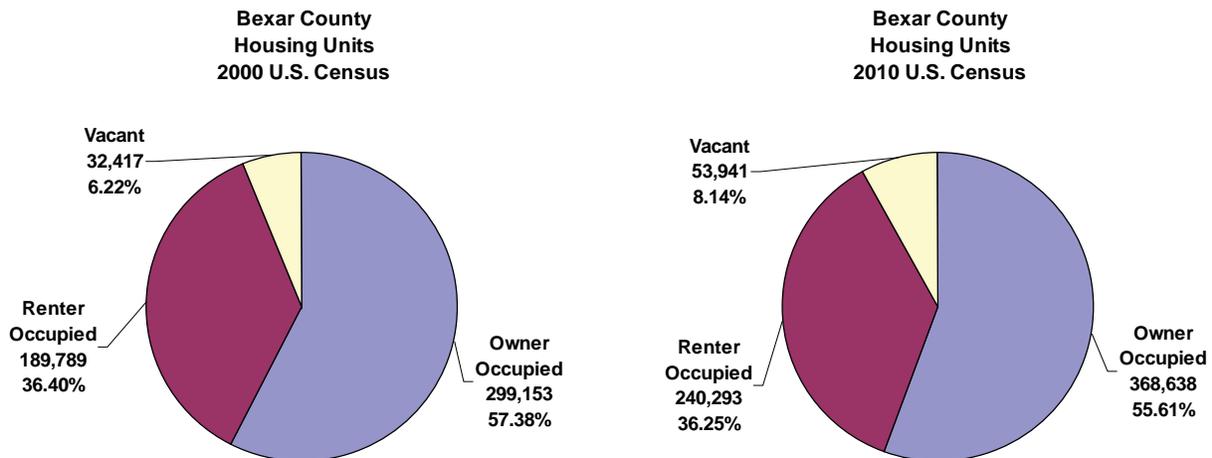

Households with One or More Children under Age 18

The total households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 16.1% from 202,363 to 234,943. Family households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 16.2% from 200,503 to 233,059. Married couple family households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 8.3% from 133,545 to 144,632. Male householder (no wife present) family households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 45.5% from 13,732 to 19,977. Female householder (no husband present) family households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 28.6% from 53,226 to 68,450. Non family households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 1.3% from 1,860 to 1,884. Male householder non family households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 0.7% from 1,322 to 1,331. Female householder non family households with one or more children under age 18 increased by 2.8% from 538 to 553.

Housing Unit Occupancy or Vacancy

Bexar County's total housing units increased by 27.1% from 521,359 to 662,872. Occupied housing units increased by 24.6% from 488,942 to 608,931. Owner occupied housing units increased by 23.2% from 299,153 to 368,638. Renter occupied housing units increased by 27.6% from 189,789 to 240,293. Vacant housing units increased by 66.4% from 32,417 in 2000 to 53,941 in 2010.

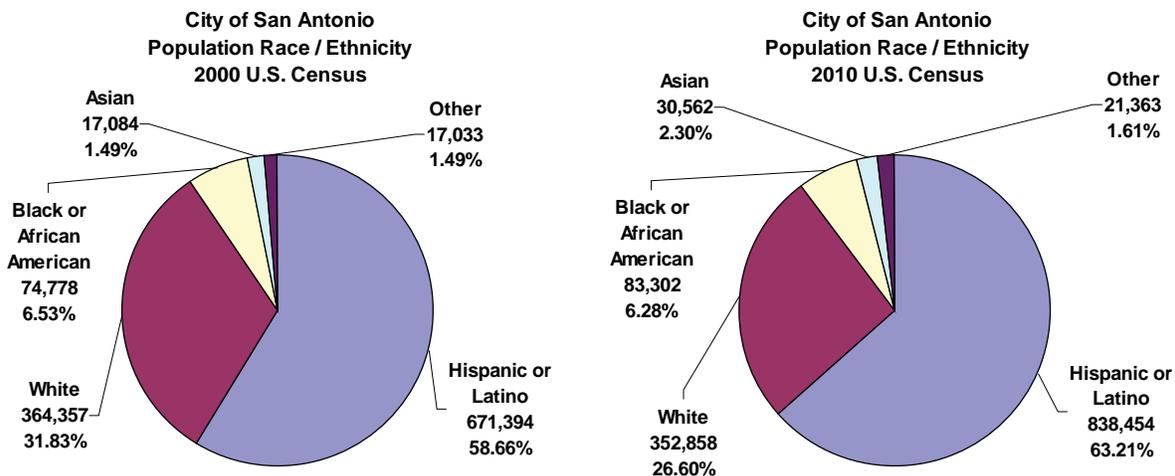

CITY OF SAN ANTONIO

HIGHLIGHTS:

- The City of San Antonio experienced a lower total population growth rate (+15.9%) than Bexar County (+23.1%) in its population increase from 1,144,646 to 1,326,539.
- The City of San Antonio experienced growth in the Hispanic or Latino (+24.9%), Black or African American (+11.4%) and Asian (+78.9%) populations, with the Hispanic or Latino population having the highest numeric growth (+167,060). The White population group was the only major race / ethnicity group to decline (-3.2%).
- The City of San Antonio experienced male population numeric (+94,002) and percent (+17%) increases and female population numeric (+87,891) and percent increases (+14.9%). Despite the greater increase in the male population, the male / female ratio (0.95) shows that females are still (slightly) in the majority.
- Both the 2000 and 2010 age distributions for the City of San Antonio are somewhat equal numbers and percentages for almost all age groups and between genders. However, a comparison of the two distributions also indicates that a higher proportion of the population is now in the older age groups.

METHODOLOGY

SF 1 Dataset

The U.S. Census SF 1 are released as individual files with identical tables for each state. Data for the states and their sub areas are provided in hierarchical sequence down to the block level (P & H tables), the census tract level (PCT & HCT tables), or the county level (PCO tables), depending on the detail shown in the table. The file structure includes, but is not limited to the following geographic levels: State; County; County subdivision; Place (such as the City of San Antonio); Census tract; Block group; and Block. The U.S. Census Bureau's Web site (www.census.gov) provides SF 1 Flat ASCII files by state for download via File Transfer Protocol (FTP). Components include a fixed-length ASCII format geographic header data and 47 comma-separated ASCII format data files with multiple tables each. From this ASCII format, data can be extracted for a particular area (such as Bexar and Medina Counties – Two Blocks within the City of San Antonio are in Medina County) and converted using a software package such as Microsoft Office Access into several formats, including databases, spreadsheets, and for use with GIS (mapping) applications.

Resolution of Data

In the 2010 Census SF 1 data there are 331 tables at various county and sub-county geographic area resolutions with a total of 5,960 variables. The finest resolution data is at the block level with Bexar County having almost 20,000 blocks in 2000 and over 26,000 blocks in 2010. Not all data is available at the block level. For instance, the homeless population data, compiled for the first time in the 2010 census, is only available at the much larger tract level (366 tracts in the 2010).

COSA Population Calculation versus Census Bureau Calculations

The reported 2010 total population for the City of San Antonio by the U.S. Census Bureau is 1,327,407. Once the 2000 and 2010 SF 1 for Bexar and Medina counties had been obtained and converted to a usable GIS format, blocks with a place value indicating a designation as being within the City of San Antonio (PLACENS = 02411774) were selected. The blocks along the City of San Antonio boundary were then visually compared with the official City of San Antonio boundaries and those of other cities & towns. It was determined that the Census Bureau had assigned 35 census blocks with a total population of 868, to the City of San Antonio that are actually outside of the City and include portions of the cities of Leon Valley, Balcones Heights, Hill Country Village, Windcrest and Kirby. This report excludes those 868 people giving the City of San Antonio a total population of 1,326,539 for 2010.

Procedure to Assign Blocks to Council District Areas

If the central point of a census block fell inside a Council District, that blocks value's were assigned to that Council District. A visual review of the Council District boundaries, Council District symbolized blocks and aerial photography ensured correct assignments.
